ON July 3 most came off the ration in Britain, and the last — the very last — of the restrictions imposed by the war was removed. When I look back on the days in the years just after the war (during the war, when so many British men and women were enjoying decent rationed food, I look back with a sense of awe and wonder at the most amazing feat of the war — the fact that we were able to get the most out of the most meagre resources. I can't believe that we are taking the disappearance of the ration as a philosophical statement. The fact is, of course, that the process of removing the controls from one commodity after another over the last eight years has been a steady, unrelenting process. The ration has been steadily increasing, and the price increasing with it, most people have been able to get all the meat they can afford.

NEVERTHELESS, everyone looked forward to July 3. Most had been on the ration for a long time; people had to register with a butcher and had, to a great extent, to take what meat they could get. I can't believe that we are taking the disappearance of the ration as a philosophical statement. The fact is, of course, that the process of removing the controls from one commodity after another over the last eight years has been a steady, unrelenting process. The ration has been steadily increasing, and the price increasing with it, most people have been able to get all the meat they can afford.

THE general mood of the country these days seems strongly set against plans, planners and bureaucrats. There is a growing feeling that one of the main reasons for which men go on strike nowadays is not much working conditions and the cost of living, but their sense of the dead weight of the bureaucracy of their own country. The feeling that the distant, aloof and out-of-touch union official, aloof and out-of-touch union official.

THE most dramatic manifestation of this spirit of revolt against the bureaucracy has been in the repudiation of the "Crisis Down" affair. The facts of the case are complicated — they involve a Government's right to dispose in peacetime of agricultural lands taken over by it during the war. The Government's right to dispose in peacetime of agricultural lands taken over by it during the war. The Government's right to dispose in peacetime of agricultural lands taken over by it during the war.

UK, US Amity Comes First—Churchill

LONDON, Tuesday (Reuter). — Sir Winston Churchill landed at Southampton tonight with the words, "Nothing comes before the true and lasting friendship between Britain and the United States." He displayed the vigorous mood with which he has returned from his Washington talks with President Eisenhower by telephoning from the "Queen Elizabeth" at sea today to order two Cabinet meetings, the first tomorrow and the second on Thursday.

Beaming at the crowds who lined the rails of the "Queen Elizabeth" to cheer him as he walked down the gangway, and faced a battery of news reels and cameras.

"Here we are again — back home," he said. "We have had a very pleasant voyage, very restful — a great contrast to the strenuous but not at all unpleasant six days we passed on the other side of the Atlantic."

The Prime Minister said, "I have not yet been able to grasp the reaction to our session which has taken place over here, but I do not doubt that it is something about that in the House of Commons in the near future."

But I feel that by trying our best in the United States to make good understanding and solid agreement possible between us, we have not entirely failed.

"It would be a great mistake to suppose that everything happens all at once."

Behind the Prime Minister as he spoke was Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, his face tanned and smiling. At tomorrow's Cabinet meeting Sir Winston and Mr. Eden will report on their talks.

The Prime Minister is expected to state that the White House meetings have done much to ease Anglo-American discord, particularly over South-East Asia.

The decisions that came out of the Washington talks are already being implemented. British and American officials are at work on policy towards West Germany and the setting up of a South-East Asia Defence Pact.

But one major issue for the Prime Minister and Mr. Eden is policy on the Suez Canal Zone base.

The Washington communiqué says the two leaders agreed to discuss the desirability of a plan to re-open the desecrated Suez Canal Zone. Under this plan Britain would pull her 80,000 strong garrison out of the Canal Zone within two years leaving British civilians to maintain the base.

Britain would in exchange allow Egypt to allow Western forces to return in the event of a threat of aggression against any Arab state, Turkey or Persia. But at least 40 "rebels" among Sir Winston's parliamentary supporters insist that Britain must continue to keep troops in the zone especially in view of the worsening military situation in Indo-China.

(The British Ambassador in Cairo, Sir Ralph Stevenson, met Dr. Mahmoud Fawzi, the Egyptian Foreign Minister, this morning, according to United Press. The Embassy spokesman said that only routine matters were discussed.)

Iran Oil Talks Hit Snag Over Management
TEHRAN, Tuesday (Reuter). — Western and Persian oil experts failed to reach agreement here today on the terms of management of the nationalized oil fields which would restore the flow of Persian oil to world markets.

A British delegate said last night that this issue which caused the suspension of the first talks of negotiations was again holding up progress towards an early settlement of the Anglo-Iranian dispute.

Dr. Ali Akbar, Persian Finance Minister, announced imminent agreement on Saturday after the seventh session of the current talks between government officials and delegation representing world companies.

Big efforts are being made here to break the impasse. The delegates are held up on the crucial issue of management of the nationalized oil industry.

Crux of the problem is whether a technical non-profit-making board should have ultimate responsibility to the oil company group or to the Persian government and Majlis (parliament).

London Fuel Talks Said Satisfactory
LYDIA AIRPORT, Tuesday. — The fuel airship to the Government, Mr. F. Kewell, reported here last night that the first phase of the London talks for the reduction of the price of crude oil to Israel were concluded "satisfactorily" with an interim agreement.

The negotiations lasted three weeks and were attended by Dr. Shimon, head of the Israel Purchasing Mission in Cologne, and representatives of Shell and Anglo-Iranian. The final stage of the talks would be tackled shortly, Mr. Kewell said.

In reply to a question, he said that the problem of Israel purchases of crude oil in the USSR had not figured in the negotiations and that there were no objections to the raising of this oil here.

The first shipment of Soviet crude fuel is due in Israel this month.

Vietnam Mass For Attack On Hanoi

PARIS, Tuesday (Reuter). — About 70,000 anti-Communist troops are massed only 40 kilometres north of Hanoi, the Tonkin capital, according to reports received here tonight.

Although there was a danger that the Vietnamese Commander-in-Chief, General Nguyen Giap, might launch a pincer movement against the city, French military quarters here remained confident that such an assault was not imminent.

French troops, after abandoning the southern part of the delta, are taking up battle positions on a line approximately 100 km. long south of the vital Hanoi-Haiphong communication artery.

For the most part the new French positions are 30 to 40 km. south of the Hanoi-Haiphong line.

Tunisian Cabinet Resigns; Fails To Stop Terror

TUNIS, Tuesday. — The Bey of Tunisia today accepted the resignation of the Prime Minister, Mr. Mohamed Masmoudi, leaving Tunisia without a responsible cabinet at the height of the terrorist campaign. The Premier's failure to stop extremist activities was given as the reason for the acceptance.

The three-month-old government of Mr. Masmoudi ended its resignation on June 18 during the French cabinet crisis, but the Bey asked the Ministers to carry on pending the formation of a new government. Several Ministers had already returned to private life in protest when the formation of the Masmoudi government in Paris was not immediately followed by a new government in Tunisia.

Mr. Masmoudi formed his cabinet at a time when the political situation seemed to be returning to normalcy. A new wave of terrorism has since swept the country and strings of assassinations by the French authorities have only worsened the situation.

Tunisian political quarters were reluctant to speculate about the name of the next Premier but said that if Franco-Tunisian talks were successful, the Bey might summon Mr. Hedi Khouira, former Secretary-General of the Neo-Destour, to form a new government.

Unconfirmed reports stated that Premier Masmoudi-France would shortly initiate discussions with the Neo-Destour Nationalist movement to find a basis for an armistice settlement, but while government officials in Paris maintained silence on government intentions, Tunisian Nationalist spokesmen reported that the French were unlikely to take any action until they had solved the top priority problem of the Indo-China war. SIX CONDEMNED
CASABLANCA, Tuesday. — Six Moroccan men were sentenced to death last night, three of them to life imprisonment, by a court trying alleged members and accomplices of the "Black Hand" terrorist organization.

Eighteen others were sentenced to hard labour terms ranging from ten years to life. Seventeen got prison terms and four were released.

Charges ranged from homicide through complicity and unlawful possession of arms to destroying public buildings. The "Black Hand" was formed just after the riots in Casablanca in December which led to the outlawing of the Istiqlal Nationalist Party.

CHOU HO MEET
TOKYO, Tuesday (UP). — Radio Peiping revealed today that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai conferred with Mr. Chai-chin, an anti-Communist agent on the border between the two countries.

A Japanese language broadcast monitored in Tokyo did not say when the meeting took place.

Apparently the meeting took place just prior to Chou's return to Peiping today from the Geneva talks with Delhi and Rangoon conferences.

Lawon Flays Arab Version Of Jerusalem Shooting

Knesset Approves Statement

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

"When I stood here yesterday I asked myself why the Jordan Government had decided on this provocative act in Jerusalem. The ordinary arguments did not seem sufficient. Today I have the confession of the chief actor revealing his motives and making the situation both clearer and more dangerous," said the Minister of Defence, Mr. Lavon, in the Knesset last night in his summing up of the debate on the security situation.

"The Secretary of the Arab League has declared in Cairo that the aim of the 'heavy guns' used by Israel was to test the Arab defences, to find the weak spots in the Old City defences and discover the extent to which the Arabs were prepared to defend themselves. This was the beginning of an attempt to break into Jerusalem and occupy it."

At the end of the debate, the Coalition resolution to take note of the Defence Minister's statement was passed by 66 votes to 12. Mapam abstaining.

A Herut resolution declaring that the only way to peace lay in an Israeli move to force the Arab League to make a statement of the Defence Minister's statement was passed by 66 votes to 12. Mapam abstaining.

The U.N. Secretariat had no confirmation of the Lebanese report intended to raise the latest Jerusalem incidents before the Security Council.

United Nations circles could not understand the meaning Lebanon would give its complaint, since as a result of the good offices of U.N. Observers, shooting was stopped in Jerusalem.

Will Fight for Rights
Mr. Lavon said that the Israeli Government had serious accusations to make against certain powers who accepted the hostile attitude of the Arab states to Israel and were even willing to supply them with arms almost unconditionally. He thought that they must bear responsibility for what had been happening. He said "Government will fight with determination for its rights. But this fight is not directed toward a breach of the armistice, or a military and financial aid to 'check' Israeli attacks."

The Ambassador who had presented a message to General Na'agib, King Hussein, said President told him a decision would be given as soon as possible.

Identical messages were sent to the rulers of Libya and the Yemen.

According to "Falastin," agreement on the armistice was taken by the Lebanese and Syrian armies to come to the rescue of Jordan under the Arab League security pact reached at four-hour meeting on the border on Monday night.

In its editorial the same paper states that none of the Arab states aided Jordan during the shooting last week. "Not a single Arab diplomatic representative," it writes, "dared show his face in the Old City at that time. Had they been invited to a banquet, they would have rushed there from Amman immediately."

Further, there were reports of intention to effect a withdrawal of the Arab League to prevail on the Vatican to lead a campaign to "save" Jerusalem and the Holy Places from the Jewish people.

Medium Mortars Used
"There is no sense in examining the obvious lies in this statement. The heaviest 'gun' used by Israel was a medium mortar. The defence of the Old City can be studied with a pair of field-glasses by anyone who climbs to a rooftop, there is no need for three days' firing. It is grotesque for anybody who wishes to appear as a serious statesman to make such a suggestion. We know all the sensitive spots in the Old City, and we did not fire a single shot in order to discover them."

We hope that the Pope, as the bearer of a great spiritual responsibility, will know truth from lies and will give his support to this anti-Jewish tirade. We have heard of a desperate attempt to activate anti-Semitism to alert the Christian world as though we were threatening the Holy Places and it must arise and protect them. It is the blood-libel, in a 1954 edition."

We hope that other powers will understand the nature of this evil and lying propaganda and the danger it could spell, Israel's true policy has been defined on many occasions. It seeks peace. It is prepared to defend, and will protect its people, its property, its rights and its frontiers."

Earlier, Mr. Lavon had asked for objectivity in criticism of the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

This decision was arrived at after a long conference between General Vaghi Ben-Nakke, Chief U.N. Observer in Palestine, and Mr. Alfred Naccache, Lebanese Minister of Foreign Affairs.
